EDITORIAL DE MÚSICA
BOILEAU

In 2014, after 7 years as a music teacher in Secondary Education at Hamelin-Laie International School, I presented a very risky project that basically aimed at making music an experience for the student rather than a subject based on theoretical concepts. Hamelin-Laie International School, interested in the idea that the students could form musical groups, supported the idea.

Based on the Big Band, I thought of creating one per class. To carry out the proposal and take care of the training of each of the rhythmic sections myself, I needed a team of teachers to train the students to play the wind instruments; that is where I was lucky enough to have Michael Dehner, Eva Garín and Josep Morera and share the excitement of this new methodology with them.

Throughout this period, and working with 12 classes in each academic year, the four of us have learned a lot from the students and their instrumental initiation. I thought it would be a good idea to create our own repertoire that could be performed with the Big Band, another type of smaller formation or even individually, but always suitable for instrumental initiation, allowing the student to improvise and perform different musical styles from the beginning. The tool that you have in your hands is the one that we have designed so that the students can familiarize themselves with the instrument, practicing and improvising from the beginning. They can practice pieces of diverse styles, in an individual or collaborative way, making it possible to understand and enjoy the work that they carry out integrating their musical education as an experiential and significant learning experience.

We hope it will be as useful for you as it is to us.

Trombone

The trombone is a wind instrument. It belongs to the brass family.

It is similar to a trumpet, except the player moves a slide to change the length of the tube.

To make the trombone sound, you have to make your lips vibrate into the mouthpiece. The most common trombone is the tenor trombone, which is a non-transposing instrument. It is, however, written in the bass-clef.
